Dobrý den and good day!

Welcome to Prague.

This postcard shows part of Mala Strana, or Lesser Town, where I like to walk and do my class reading. Prague is a lovely city throughout, but I like the smaller, less majestic parts best to really spend time in. And they are still really majestic! All of my classes are interesting combinations of local culture, history, and broader world context. It is neat to be reading (Kafka for example) and watching films in their original setting. I am also learning a lot from the perspective of the Americans in two other programs and all the European exchange students. It is especially fun to travel with them and hear about their home countries. Tonight we have an open mic for a midterm, to share the art and writing we have found or made here!

Thanks as always and hope all is well.
